Square Spiral Example

The "square_spiral" exercise requires you to define a recursive function which creates a spiral from straight lines. Each recursive call should draw one line. The following image was produced by a function which increases the line length by 3 pixels at each recursive call and stops when the line length reaches 400 pixels.